CARTE POSTALE

Westminster Abbey.—The most famous building in London. It has the charm of high antiquity and architectural beauty. Its foundation is due to St Edward, King and Confessor, who rebuilt it 1049–1065, and whose shrine is found, with a bodyguard of Kings, behind the High Altar. All the English Monarchs have been crowned here, and a niche in this Temple of Fame has been the crowning glory of a life of valour or of merit. Last, but not least, the grave of "The Unknown Soldier" of the Great War makes this a place of pilgrimage for the whole British Race.
